PRESS RELEASE

SWELL SEASON: RIDE THE AUTUMN WAVES

If you think the beach season is over once the bucket-and-spade brigades have packed up and gone home, think again. The surf's up and it's the best time of year for wave-riding. Why? Because the water's had all summer to warm-up and the waves are less-crowded. So where better to head for a surf trip than the surfing capital of Europe right on your doorstep – Cornwall.

What we offer is a unique and luxurious surfing experience. Stay in chintz-free, boutique accommodation, where creature comforts range from power showers and luxurious baths to log fires, home-cooked dinners and state-of-the-art mod-cons. And after a night of indulgence in the lap of luxury your water-wings will be jet-fuelled by the finest of breakfast feasts. But it doesn't stop there. In-house pampering extends to massages, yoga and reiki, to soothe your aching muscles and prepare you for another workout in the waves.

Whether you're a surfing aficionado or a complete beginner, we can organise one-to-one tuition and surfaris along the Cornish coastline, or leave you to surf to your heart's content at secluded beach breaks. We cater for large groups, stag and hen parties, corporate jollies and romantic couples, offering a range of bespoke accommodation to suit your individual needs. And if the surf's not up, there is a range of other adrenalin-fuelled activities to try, including mountain-boarding, coasteering, coastal walking and kitesurfing.

All properties are just a short drive away from classic surf breaks and within easy reach of Newquay Airport, which is served by daily flights from Stansted with Ryanair (www.ryanair.com) and from Gatwick with Air Southwest (www.airsouthwest.com).
