Sit by the floor-to-ceiling windows in The Boathouse on The Lingholm Estate – situated on the western shore of Derwentwater in the Lake District – and you'll feel as though you are floating above the water. Indeed, every room in this impeccably designed cabin has unrivalled views over both the lake and the dramatic fells. Return from a day's boating for sun-downers on the deck and enjoy the tranquillity. From £1,065 for three nights. TheLingholmestate.co.uk

Secret shores

Set your hearts on a secluded getaway close to home? Olivia Marks discovers Britain's best honeymoon hideaways

THE HIDE Cornwall

The traditional cottage is turned on its head with The Hide – a small, modernist concrete house tucked away down a country lane in Perranporth. It has everything you'll need for a secluded rural retreat: an outside yoga deck, a hot tub from which to soak up the far-reaching coastal views, and a firepit to stargaze beside. From £1,250 for three nights. Uniquehomestays.com

FILLY ISLAND Gloucestershire

Close to Cirencester, you will find Filly Island: a tiny chocolate-box cottage – the sole building on a minuscule island – accessed by a bridge beneath which flows a babbling brook. It's fairytale stuff. Spend days meandering the nearby postcard-pretty villages or walking the surrounding hills. From £695 for three nights. Uniquehomestays.com

MINT CROFT Isle of Skye

Set on the edge of Loch Snizort, in the village of Geary, is Mint Croft. With handcrafted kitchens, log fires and thick stone walls, these luxury one-bed abodes make a cosy base from which to explore the wild surrounds. Walk from your front door along the loch and spot minke whales, puffins and otters – and not another soul. That said, Stein Inn, the island's oldest pub, is but a 10-minute drive away. From £800 for three nights. Mintcroftskye.com
