

The hidden heart of Cornwall

Turn inland from the celebrated coast path to find wild moors and thickly wooded valleys — an interior landscape disparaged by early visitors and still overlooked today

Morwell, Tamar Valley A 17th-century farmhouse beside a bend in the River Tamar, Morwell is a luxurious home, with flagstone floors, large fireplaces and velvet sofas. Outside is a walled garden, private swimming pool, 50 acres of orchards and water meadows and more than a mile of private river frontage, where you can spot otters and kingfishers. Sleeps six, from £1,795 per week; uniquehomestays.com
