

Get the latest news from House & Garden in your inbox every week

SIGN UP

UK HOLIDAY HOUSES TO BOOK NOW

The loveliest remote hideaways for UK holidays

Our travel editor Pamela Goodman picks her favourite remote hideaways in the UK, perfect for a summer staycation

BY PAMELA GOODMAN

Travel quarantine regulations are making it hard for us to think of foreign shores right now, added to which are the plenty amongst us who may feel nervous - in the aftermath of lock down - at the prospect of overseas travel at all. Enter the staycation and the wonderful world we have right on our doorstep that is so often overlooked by our desire to jump on planes and head to warmer climes. There is no better time than now to plan a holiday at home - particularly in a secluded cottage in a remote UK location where social distancing restrictions come as the norm.

Get the latest news from House & Garden in your inbox every week

SIGN UP

...

The Wilds, Powys, Wales

Deep within the Black Mountains and at the end of a long lane, The Wilds is a traditional Welsh farmhouse with accommodation for up to 12 guests divided between the main house and a barn conversion in the courtyard. As an ideal spot for a multi-generational family reunion, once border restrictions within the UK have been lifted, the property comes with a sunny conservatory, a hot tub, an outdoor pizza oven and spectacular views of mountains and valleys. The small town of Crickhowell is a short drive away.

From £2,250 per week (short breaks available, too); uniquehomestays.com; 01637 355777