Smokehouse Cottage in Pembrokeshire
UNIQUE HOMESTAYS

5. Drift off to the sound of waves in Pembrokeshire

The perfect seaside cottage should be remote — even slightly forsaken — bright in sunshine and cosy when it's blowing a hooley. It should have sunset views and access to a surf-battered stretch of sand beyond the range of day trippers and, crucially, you must be able to hear the waves from your bed. Ideally it would have a log burner and a hot tub and smell ever-so-slightly of kippers. All of the above — minus, alas, the kipper scent — are true of Smokehouse Cottage, at the South Nolton end of Newgale beach in Pembrokeshire with views across St Bride's Bay to Solva. It sleeps four and dogs are welcome.
