Staycations may be the only kind of holiday on the agenda for a while, but who needs the Med when you've got the Cornish Riviera? Gather your household, and get booking your dream British holiday home now.

Fawn Wood, East Sussex

As befits a property with a history spanning almost a millennium, Fawn Wood has had its fair share of famous visitors – Henry VIII is believed to have stayed at a hunting lodge on the same grounds, and its edge-of-Ashdown Forest setting means it can double as AA Milne's Hundred Acre Wood for imaginative fans of Winnie the Pooh. Flagstone floors, wooden beams and the original timber frame remind you that you're in a listed, 17th-century building, but the under-floor heating, golf-simulator studio, Quooker taps, Nespresso machine and hanging cocoon fireplace provide the modern comforts. The house sleeps up to six adults and two children, with an extra double room available on request.
