Those looking for hip holiday rentals have never had it so good, for Irish holiday home accommodation offers plenty of interior and exterior ideas to bring home as souvenirs.

Gather round and start planning getting away with either friends or family, and use your time there to decide if you like the layouts and furnishings enough to try them at home.

Walden Lakehouse, on the shores of Lough Ree

Walden Lakehouse on the shores of Lough Ree, the Shannon's middle lake, is a timber chalet that wows. The waves of the lake lap at its deck and its mid-century sensibility and woodland setting so charmed the architect judges of Home of the Year that it won the title in 2016.

Owned by interior designer Egon Walesch and his partner Richard Goodwin, it sleeps four in its two bedrooms, so would suit two couples, and costs £1,095 (€1,304) for a three-night break in May, rising to £3,095 for a week in July/August. uniquehomestays.com
