

10 of the most unusual surf stays in the UK

From a Lord of the Rings-style hobbit house to an off-grid spaceship-like hideout, here's our pick of the best one-of-a-kind coastal sleeps

The Edge Beach Hut, Whitsand Bay, England

This chic beach hut feels like it's at the edge of the world
(Unique Homestays)

High above the Cornish coast, this chic cedar-clad beach hut feels like it's at the edge of the world. Far from the dilapidated deckchair-filled sheds on the beach, this hut is glam, with plush linens and designer furniture. It's got bird's eye views of the dramatic surf and the four-mile stretch of sand below – after a session, you can wash off your salty skin in the alfresco shower and soak in the outdoor hot tub. Tip: Runners bring your trainers – there's a rugged cliff track right next to the cabin.

Sleeps two, from £1,295 per short break.
