ORPHEUS SUFFOLK

Nestled in northeast Suffolk's Sotterley Estate, Orpheus is a Georgian masterpiece. Every nook and cranny of the seven bedroom mansion has been adorned with decorative plasterwork, plush velvet curtains, and 18th-century wall hangings. Crystal chandeliers from Sotheby's and bespoke designs by Adam Ellis elevate the interiors — all of which is combined with cutting edge tech so that the lighting and sound systems are yours to control at the touch of an iPad.

For the moments you're recovering from the night before, the top floor hosts a cinema with a Dolby Atmos sound system, as well as a spa, gym, sauna and steam room featuring loungers with sweeping views of the bucolic Suffolk landscape. While Orpheus is only a short drive away from the heritage coast at Southwold or Covehithe, its allure may make it tempting to stay in and relish the estate, especially if what you're really after is a good old-fashioned party.
